NEW QUESTION: 2

Your network contains two Active Directory domains named contoso.com and adatum.com. The network contains a server named Server1 that runs Windows Server 2012 R2. Server1 has the DNS Server server role installed. Server1 has a copy of the contoso.com DNS zone. You need to configure Server1 to resolve names in the adatum.com domain. The solution must meet the following requirements:

Prevent the need to change the configuration of the current name servers that host zones for adatum.com.

Minimize administrative effort.

Which type of zone should you create?

- A. Secondary
- B. Stub
- C. Reverse lookup
- D. Primary

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

When a zone that this DNS server hosts is a stub zone, this DNS server is a source only for information about the authoritative name servers for this zone. The zone at this server must be obtained from another DNS server that hosts the zone. This DNS server must have network access to the remote DNS server to copy the authoritative name server information about the zone.

A stub zone is a copy of a zone that contains only necessary resource records (Start of Authority (SOA), Name Server (NS), and Address/Host (A) record) in the master zone and acts as a pointer to the authoritative name server. The stub zone allows the server to forward queries to the name server that is authoritative for the master zone without going up to the root name servers and working its way down to the server. While a stub zone can improve performance, it does not provide redundancy or load sharing.

You can use stub zones to:

Keep delegated zone information current. By updating a stub zone for one of its child zones regularly, the DNS server that hosts both the parent zone and the stub zone will maintain a current list of authoritative DNS servers for the child zone.

Improve name resolution. Stub zones enable a DNS server to perform recursion using the stub zone's list of name servers, without having to query the Internet or an internal root server for the DNS namespace.

Simplify DNS administration. By using stub zones throughout your DNS infrastructure, you can distribute a list of the authoritative DNS servers for a zone without using secondary zones.

However, stub zones do not serve the same purpose as secondary zones, and they are not an alternative for enhancing redundancy and load sharing.

There are two lists of DNS servers involved in the loading and maintenance of a stub zone:

The list of master servers from which the DNS server loads and updates a stub zone. A master server may be a primary or secondary DNS server for the zone. In both cases, it will have a complete list of the DNS servers for the zone.

The list of the authoritative DNS servers for a zone. This list is contained in the stub zone using name server (NS) resource records.

When a DNS server loads a stub zone, such as widgets. tailspintoys.com, it queries the master servers, which can be in different locations, for the necessary resource records of the authoritative servers for the zone widgets. tailspintoys.com. The list of master servers may contain a single server or multiple servers, and it can be changed anytime.

NEW QUESTION: 3

You are using replication and the binary log files on your master server consume a lot of disk space.

Which two steps should you perform to safely remove some of the older binary log files?

(Choose two.)

A. Ensure that none of the attached slaves are using any of the binary logs you want to delete.

B. Remove all of the binary log files that have a modification date earlier than today.

C. Use the command PURGE BINARY LOGS and specify a binary log file name or a date and time to remove unused files.

A: To safely purge binary log files, follow this procedure:

1. On each slave server, use SHOW SLAVE STATUS to check which log file it is reading.

2. Obtain a listing of the binary log files on the master server with SHOW BINARY LOGS.

3. Determine the earliest log file among all the slaves. This is the target file. If all the slaves are up to date, this is the last log file on the list.

4. Make a backup of all the log files you are about to delete. (This step is optional, but always advisable.)

5. Purge all log files up to but not including the target file.

Syntax:

PURGE { BINARY | MASTER } LOGS

```
{ TO 'log_name' | BEFORE datetime_expr }

D. Execute the PURGE BINARY LOGS NOT USED command.

E. Edit the .index file to remove the files you want to delete.

Answer: A,C

NEW QUESTION: 4

Forward downstream integration most likely:

A. Improves access to information about demand.

B. Allows the firm to protect its proprietary knowledge from suppliers.

C. May allow the firm's subunit(s) to maintain constant production rates while external parties bear the risk of fluctuations.

D. Implies that the firm can fully support an efficient subunit but has additional needs to be met in the market.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A strategic advantage of forward integration is that access to market information is improved. A forward subunit (the demand leading stage) controls the amount and mix of demand to be satisfied upstream. At the very least, forward integration improves the timeliness of (1) demand information, (2) production planning, (3) inventory control, and (4) the costs of being under- or over-stocked. It also may provide information about changing tastes, competitors' moves, and the ideal mix of products.
