NEW QUESTION: 2

Researchers have recently developed a tool that imitates a 14 year old on the Internet. The authors developed a "Chatter Bot" that mimics conversation and treats the dissemination of personal information as the goal to determine if the other participant in the conversation is a pedophile.

The tool engages people in conversation and uses artificial intelligence to check for inappropriate questions by the unsuspecting human. If the human types too many suggestive responses to the "artificial" 14 year old, the tool then notifies the police.

From a legal perspective, what is the greatest legal challenge to the use of this tool?

- A. Entrapment
- B. Violation of Privacy
- C. Freedom of Speech
- D. Enticement

Answer: A

Explanation:

Entrapment occurs when a law enforcement agent or someone acting as an "agent" of law enforcement induces a person to commit a crime not contemplated by the person. A person who makes a knowingly false representation designed to induce the belief that the conduct is not prohibited, or employs methods of persuasion or inducement which create a substantial risk that such an offense will be committed by persons other than those who are ready to commit it. Basically, the Chatter Bot could possibly induce a person to engage in conduct that the person would not otherwise have engaged in if the chatterbot did not "feed" the information to the person.

Entrapment does not prove that a person intended to commit a crime. It only proves that a person was successfully tricked into committing a crime.

The following answers are incorrect:

Violation of Privacy and Freedom of Speech are detractors, as these Constitutional protections do not apply in the commission of the crime.

Enticement is very easily confused with entrapment. Enticement is the act of coaxing or luring someone do do something (but not necessarily a criminal act). Enticement is legal and ethical.

A good example of Enticement would be the use of an HoneyPot. If a person is lured into a honey pot because there are open ports that may be probed, that is enticement. The person who proceeds by poking into those open ports is enticed and proceeds to commit a crime based on their own actions. However, if a person is lured with a false promise of an illegal bounty that awaits them if they follow a link to a honeypot, (for example, a link that promises free movie downloads), that is entrapment because the lure may be so overwhelming that even an innocent person may be tempted to proceed in the commission of the illegal act.
