Dnscmd A command-line interface for managing DNS servers. This utility is useful in scripting batch files to help automate routine DNS management tasks, or to perform simple unattended setup and configuration of new DNS servers on your network.

dnscmd /zoneresettype

Changes the zone type.

Syntax

dnscmd [<ServerName>] /zoneresettype <ZoneName> <ZoneType> [/overwrite_mem | /overwrite_ds]

Parameters

<ServerName>

Specifies the DNS server to manage, represented by local computer syntax, IP address, FQDN, or host name. If this parameter is omitted, the local server is used.

<ZoneName>

Identifies the zone on which the type will be changed.

<ZoneType> Specifies the type of zone to create. Each type has different required parameters:

/dsprimary Creates an Active Directory-integrated zone.

/primary /file <FileName> Creates a standard primary zone.

/secondary <MasterIPAddress> [,<MasterIPAddress>...] Creates a standard secondary zone.

/stub <MasterIPAddress>[,<MasterIPAddress>...] /file <FileName> Creates a file-backed stub zone.

/dsstub <MasterIPAddress>[,<MasterIPAddress>...] Creates an Active Directory-integrated stub zone.

/forwarder <MasterIPAddress>[,<MasterIPAddress>...] /file<FileName>

Specifies that the created zone forwards unresolved queries to another DNS server.

/dsforwarder Specifies that the created Active Directory-integrated zone forwards unresolved queries to another DNS server.

/overwrite_mem | /overwrite_ds

Specifies how to overwrite existing data:

/overwrite_mem Overwrites DNS data from data in AD DS.

/overwrite_ds Overwrites existing data in AD DS.

Remarks

Setting the zone type as /dsforwarder creates a zone that performs conditional forwarding.

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which of the following is a side effect of extensive usage of swap space?

A. The memory may become fragmented and slow down the access to memory pages.

However, this can be kept to a minimum by the regular use of memfrag -d.

B. The root filesystem may become full because swap space is always located on the system root partition.

C. The overall system performance may degrade because of heavy hard disk use and memory reorganization.

D. Since processes always exist completely in either RAM or swap, regular RAM may become unused if the kernel does not move processes back from the swap space to memory.

E. Applications need to restart because their virtual memory addresses change to reflect memory relocation to the swap address area.

Answer: C
