Clients in VLAN 10 complain that they cannot access network resources and the Internet. When you try to ping the default gateway from one of the affected clients, you get ping timeouts. What is the most likely cause of this issue?
A. VLAN 10 is only enabled on trunk interfaces.
B. IP routing is disabled on the switch.
C. STP is not running on the switch.
D. The switch CAM table is corrupted.
E. VLAN 10 is not created in the switch database.
Answer: E
Explanation:
Explanation
Troubleshooting the Autostate Feature on IOS Based Switches
Perform these troubleshooting steps if the VLAN interface is down.
This is the symptom of a VLAN interface being in up/down status.
Corgon-6000#sh int vlan 151
Vlan151 is up, line protocol is down
!--- Line protocol on interface VLAN 151 is down.
!--- You need to investigate why this line protocol is not up
!--- (at least one L2 port exists, and there should be a
!--- link up on this VLAN).
Check to make sure that VLAN 151 exists in the VLAN database and is active. The command below shows that the VLAN exists and is active on the switch.
Corgon-6000#sh vlan 151 | i 151
151 VLAN151 active Gi4/10
151 enet 100151 1500 - - - - - 0 0
Corgon-6000#
!--- VLAN 151 exists in VLAN database and is active.
!--- L2 port Gig4/10 is assigned to VLAN 151.
Check the status of interface gig 4/10 assigned to VLAN 151.
Corgon-6000#sh int gig 4/10
GigabitEthernet4/10 is up, line protocol is down (notconnect) Corgon-6000#sh run int gig 4/10
Building configuration... Current configuration : 182 bytes ! interface GigabitEthernet4/10 no ip address logging event link-status logging event bundle-status switchport switchport access vlan 151 switchport mode access end
The reason for the line protocol of interface VLAN 151 being down is because GigabitEthernet4/10 link is not connected, as seen from the interface status. It is possible that no device is connected to the interface or that the link has cabling or auto-negotiation issues preventing the link from being up. Connect the device to GigabitEthernet4/10 to bring the interface link up. Mar 11 12:10:52.340: %LINK-3-UPDOWN: Interface GigabitEthernet4/10, changed state to up Mar 11 12:10:53.156: %LINEPROTO-5-UPDOWN: Line protocol on Interface GigabitEthernet4/10, changed state to up Corgon-6000# Corgon-6000# Corgon-6000#sh int vlan 151 Vlan151 is up, line protocol is down
Check that the VLAN interface shows that the line protocol is still down. You need to investigate why this line protocol is not up. Make sure that at least one L2 port is in spanning-tree forwarding state on this VLAN.

The Spanning-tree port status is LRN, which means learning state. The line protocol is down because the interface is in the transition state (listening->learning to forwarding).
Corgon-6000# Mar 11 12:11:23.406: %LINEPROTO-5-UPDOWN: Line protocol on Interface Vlan151, changed state to up Note: Time stamp difference between logs when the line protocol on GigabitEthernet4/10 went up, and Interface Vlan151 is around 30 seconds, which represents 2xforwarding delay in STP (listening-> learning->forwarding) Corgon-6000#sh int vlan 151 Vlan151 is up, line protocol is up The line protocol is up. You need to verify spanning-tree port status on the L2 port (should be forwarding). Corgon-6000#sh spanning-tree vlan 151

!--- Verified spanning-tree port status on L2 port !--- is FWN = forwarding.
