NEW QUESTION: 1

In multiple-controller deployments, if one controller fails, the access points perform these tasks. Drag and drop the tasks on the left into the correct order on the right.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation

In multiple-controller deployments, if one controller fails, the access points perform the following tasks: If the lightweight access point has a primary, secondary, and tertiary controller assigned, it attempts to associate with that controller. If the access point has no primary, secondary, or tertiary controllers assigned or if its primary, secondary, or tertiary controllers are unavailable, it attempts to associate with a master controller. If the access point finds no master controller, it attempts to contact stored mobility group members by the IP address. If the mobility group members are available, and if the lightweight access point has no primary, secondary, and tertiary controllers assigned and there is no master controller active, it attempts to associate with the least-loaded controller to respond to its discovery messages.
