NEW QUESTION: 2
A security administrator is tasked with implementing two-factor authentication for the company VPN. The VPN is currently configured to authenticate VPN users against a backend RADIUS server. New company policies require a second factor of authentication, and the Information Security Officer has selected PKI as the second factor. Which of the following should the security administrator configure and implement on the VPN concentrator to implement the second factor and ensure that no error messages are displayed to the user during the VPN connection? (Select TWO).
A. The CA's certificate public key must be installed on the VPN concentrator.
B. The VPN concentrator's certificate private key must be installed on the VPN concentrator.
C. The user's certificate private key must be installed on the VPN concentrator.
D. The VPN concentrator's certificate private key must be signed by the CA and installed on the VPN concentrator.
E. The user certificate private key must be signed by the CA.
F. The CA's certificate private key must be installed on the VPN concentrator.
Answer: A,B
Explanation:
A public key infrastructure (PKI) supports the distribution and identification of public encryption keys, enabling users and computers to both securely exchange data over networks such as the Internet and verify the identity of the other party.
A typical PKI includes the following key elements:
A CA issues digital certificates to entities and individuals after verifying their identity. It signs these certificates using its private key; its public key is made available to all interested parties in a self-signed CA certificate.

In this question, we have implemented a PKI. The Certificate Authority is the trusted root and supplies certificates to all devices that require one.
Every device that trusts the CA will have the CA's public installed... This includes the VPN concentrator. With the VPN concentrator trusting the CA, the VPN concentrator will trust users with certificates supplied by the CA.
For the users and their devices to trust the VPN concentrator (to ensure that no error messages are displayed to the user during the VPN connection), the VPN concentrator must have a certificate that includes a private key installed.
