NEW QUESTION: 1

Universal Containers manages a catalog of over one million products that it makes available to its customers.

The master product catalog is stored and managed in their ERP application with frequent updates made to the product catalog by their sourcing team. The sourcing team may update attributes such as price, general catalog availability, and the product description. When the sourcing team makes an update that change must go into effect during the next business day and there may be thousands of changes made over the course of the day. What integration pattern would you recommend to best manage this scenario?

- A. Write an outbound message to send product changes in real time from ERP.
- B. Build a scheduled ETL job to sync products on a nightly basis from ERP.
- C. Write a custom web service to accept product catalog changes from ERP.
- D. Use the streaming API to receive product changes in real time from ERP.

Which network security framework is used to set up access control on Cisco Appliances?

- A. RADIUS
- B. NAS
- C. AAA
- D. TACACS+

Answer: C

Explanation:

AAA is a security framework that can be used to set up access control on Cisco routers, switches, firewalls, and other network appliances. AAA provides the ability to control who is allowed to access network devices and what services the user should be allowed to access. AAA services are commonly used to control telnet or console access to network devices.
